Candidates for 2015-2016 Officer Positions

I have been Nova Southeastern University's Emerging Technologies Librarian since last December, where our current focus is developing a 3D printing program to support education and patient care. Prior to that I've worked at Baptist Health South Florida, as a librarian for their six hospitals, and at Broward and Palm Beach County public libraries. I've been active in the South Florida Health Science Library Consortium as vice-president from 2012-2013, and currently as president.

I attended my first FHSLA meeting last year and was very impressed with the width and depth of the knowledge and interests of the members. My experiences during the past year helping to organize this meeting in South Florida have solidified those impressions. I'm interested in being FHSLA president because I'd like to explore collaborations between member libraries and let everyone take better advantage of the knowledge in our membership.

John Reynolds

Candidate for FHSLA Vice President 2015, Emerging Technologies Librarian, Health Professions Division, Nova Southeastern University, Fort Lauderdale

Tara Brigham

Candidate for FHSLA Secretary 2015-2017, Medical Librarian and Supervisor, Winn-Dixie Foundation Medical Library, Mayo Clinic, Jacksonville

I received my M.L.I.S. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison and gained experience at a variety of academic, law and health sciences libraries in Wisconsin and Minnesota. After moving to Florida, I became the medical librarian and supervisor of the library at the Mayo Clinic in Jacksonville, Florida. Becoming a member of the Florida Health Sciences Library Association has allowed me to connect with medical and health sciences library staff members that I might not have had the opportunity to meet otherwise.

I am interested in the FHSLA secretary position because I would like to become more engaged with the association and to provide knowledgeable assistance to further the mission and goals of FHSLA.

Florida Health Sciences Library Association Annual Meeting 2015

Presenter Biographical Information

Martin Wood

Martin Wood, MSLIS, AHIP is the Director of the Charlotte Edwards Maguire Medical Library at Florida State University. Built as the model 21st century digital medical library, Martin is responsible for all aspects of the Maguire Medical Library, including oversight of scholarly communications, electronic resources, collection development, systems, web services, and public services. With a diverse background in libraries, technology, education, government, and business over the past two decades, Martin has become a leader of digital medical libraries, and a staunch advocate for information at the point of need. He is also an outspoken advocate for people with diabetes, Editor in Chief of The PLAID Journal, and the author of Diabetically Speaking, which has been voted "Best of the 'Betes Blogs" by the diabetes online community.

Robyn Rosasco

Robyn Rosasco, MSLIS, AHIP is the public services librarian at the Charlotte Edwards Maguire Medical Library at The Florida State University. She received her bachelor's at the University of Florida and her master's in library and information studies at The Florida State University, where she eventually earned her current position. As public services librarian, Robyn coordinates, supervises, and delivers circulation and reference/research services for the FSU College of Medicine. She has worked in both digital and brick-and-mortar libraries since the beginning of her career and has special interest in connecting the digital user to the library's physical space, as evidenced by her research and publications exploring student use of library study space and the facilitation of faculty research via embedded departmental administrative personnel. In addition to her role at the Maguire Medical Library, Robyn is an advocate of healthy living through fitness and nutritious cooking, a novice painter, and an aspiring world traveler.

Terri Johnson

Terri Johnson, MSLIS, AHIP is the Medical Informatics Librarian of the Charlotte Edwards Maguire Medical Library at Florida State University. Terri's main focus is on the integration of the medical library's electronic resources at the point of need in medical education and research among students, residents, faculty, staff, and researchers of the FSU College of Medicine. She works closely with the Director of Medical Informatics developing and teaching faculty development workshops for the College of Medicine's regional campuses. When not traveling she is an avid knitter and lover of craft beer.

Andrew Youngkin

Andrew Youngkin, MLS, AHIP, is the Outreach & Assessment coordinator at the Southeastern/Atlantic (SE/A) Regional Medical Library at the University of Maryland Baltimore Health Sciences & Human Services Library. Until recently, Andrew coordinated the emerging technologies program at the RML, presenting at FSHLA in 2013 and 2014. In 2015, he turns his attention to oversight of the RML exhibiting program and offering training and consultation on outreach assessment and evaluation. "

Susan Fowler

Susan Fowler, MLIS is a clinical librarian and systematic review services coordinator at the Washington University in St. Louis School of Medicine. Her current interests are evidence based practice, electronic health records, and developing standards for librarians conducting systematic reviews. She teaches classes on systematic reviews and has been invited to speak about mobile information resources, systematic reviews, creating subject guides, evidence based practice, and promoting library services across the United States and Mexico and was a librarian instructor for the McMaster University workshop Teaching Evidence Based Clinical Practice in 2012 and 2013. Susan has been included as a co-author on several published systematic reviews and co-authored a column on information resources in the American Journal of Nursing with Janet Schnall, retired Information Management Librarian at University of Washington. She is currently serving as co-convenor of the newly established Medical Library Association Systematic Review Special Interest Group and on the library advisory board for the New England Journal of Medicine.
