A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Vol. 28, Issue 2, Winter 2016

Greetings FHSLA colleagues,

I hope everyone has recovered from the holiday season, and is rejuvenated and ready for a new year of challenges and opportunities.

FHSLA's Continuing Education Committee sent out a survey to ascertain what classes the members would be interested in attending during the annual meeting. We are using the results of this survey and those of last year's annual meeting post-conference survey to plan a spectacular 2016 Annual Meeting. The Big Guava (aka Cigar City) has many exciting offerings for dining, shopping, and recreating. I hope to see all of you on April 7-8, 2016 at the FHSLA Annual Meeting at the University of South Florida in Tampa.

I want to thank John Reynolds (President-Elect), Stephanie Harris (Treasurer), Tara Brigham (Secretary), and Denise Shereff (Immediate Past President) for their leadership and insights. FHSLA's Officers and Committees had several conference calls to discuss our plans, policies, and procedures to ensure that the organization continues to serve the needs of our members. I hope you will consider expressing interest in an office or committee when you renew your membership for 2016.

Please continue to give us your suggestions for engaging (and staying engaged with) the entire membership throughout the year. Whether you work at an academic or a hospital library, FHSLA is your resource for medical information professionals.

If you have any ideas or concerns that you would like to share, please feel free to contact me at jreazer@ufl.edu. Don't forget to join FHSLA on LinkedIn. Finally, keep the FHSLA website bookmarked to view current officers' and committee chairs' contact information, access resources for your FHSLA needs, and stay informed via Business Meeting minutes.

John Reazer
FHSLA President

2016 Annual Meeting Update

Thursday, April 7 - Friday, April 8
University of South Florida
Tampa, FL

The Program and Local Arrangements Committees are hard at work planning an exciting and informative agenda for the 2016 FHSLA Annual Meeting in Tampa. Planned topics include everything from cybersecurity to innovative uses of maker spaces. We are working on securing CE offerings based on member feedback from last year's post-meeting survey and our follow-up survey, so thanks to those who offered suggestions. We will have more information available as arrangements are finalized.

We are having a poster session this year, so if you would like to present a poster, please start planning. Deadlines for submission will be announced in the coming weeks. There are also plans to hold another logo contest – the winner will receive free conference registration – so artists should be at the ready!

There will be discounted rooms available at the Hyatt near USF, and the committee is exploring options for an additional two hotels so that members have choices when booking rooms.

We look forward to seeing all of you in April. Information about registration and the final program will be communicated as soon as it is available.

Remember last year's meeting? Don't miss this one!

You're sure to have an experience worth remembering!

Tallahassee Community College Ghazvini Center for Healthcare Education Library & Learning Commons

I am Natalee Reese, the new Health Sciences Librarian at Tallahassee Community College as of July 1, 2015. My predecessor, Gregg Stevens, now at Mercer University in Atlanta, is the person who told me about FHSLA. I serve the Division of Healthcare Professions (HCP), which includes Dental Assisting, Dental Hygiene, EMT/Paramedic, Nursing, Pharmacy Technology, Radiologic Technology, Respiratory Care, and Surgical Services. I am primarily located at the Ghazvini Center for Healthcare Education, but I am part of the larger TCC Library team. This is my first specialized position; in the past, I have been a general Reference & Instruction Librarian at the University of South Carolina Beaufort (near Hilton Head Island), and before that I was an adjunct Reference & Instruction Librarian at Lansing Community College in Michigan, and Indiana Institute of Technology (Indiana Tech), in Fort Wayne, Indiana. My MLS is from Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis (IUPUI), and I have a B.A. in English from Purdue University.

Finally, TCC is on the cusp of launching its RN-to-BSN program, which will be 100% online, so that is a new challenge for me professionally and for us institutionally. We received our initial SACS accreditation last week and as of right now, it is anticipated that classes will begin in March 2016.

Travel:

From September 29th through October 8th, Gretchen Kuntz attended the Cochrane Colloquium in Vienna, Austria. She serves as the lead Trial Search Coordinator for the Cochrane Urology group. At the Colloquium she presented a poster titled "Transitions: Cochrane PDUC to Cochrane Urology and expanding to 12 TSCs."

On November 13th, John Reazer attended the 2015 Black Student Leadership Conference held at the University of Florida Reitz Student Union in Gainesville.

Presentations:

November 13th, John Reazer gave a PowerPoint presentation entitled, "On Being/Becoming a Black Librarian/Information Professional" at the 2015 Black Student Leadership Conference held at the University of Florida Reitz Student Union in Gainesville.

December 11th, Gretchen Kuntz and John Reazer gave a PowerPoint presentation and live demonstration, "HIV/AIDS Information Resources" to public librarians at the Charles Webb

Wesconnett Regional Library, Jacksonville Public Library. This effort is part of our HIV/AIDS Community Outreach Project contract (NLM) which was awarded to the University of Florida, as one of the contract recipients.

Contract:

Partnering to Provide HIV/AIDS Information Outreach – ($50,000 cash request) (Project team: M. Tennant (PI), H. Norton (Co-PI), with M. Ansell, M. Daley, R. Jesano, G. Kuntz, J. Reazer, N. Schaefer, and N. Stoyan-Rosenzeig (start date: 9/15/15; end date: 9/14/16)

Victory for the R.A. Williams Library at Adventist University of Health Sciences

There are a few competitive events at Adventist University of Health Sciences each year. In the spring, we have our picnic, where students and faculty from each of our programs compete in events such as egg toss, wheel chair race and tug-of-war. This may sound like a lighthearted event, but I promise you, it is extremely competitive. Programs plan their strategies and start practicing ahead of time. The Nurse Anesthesia program has won the coveted cup for two years in a row. They will face tough competition this spring.

In the winter, we have a door-decorating contest. Every year our social committee chooses a theme. The R.A. Williams Library has doggedly competed for the past 4 years, to no avail. The library has not even placed, until this year, that is. The hospital’s helicopter flight team judges each door. At our President’s Christmas Brunch, the flight team announces the winner. This year we are the proud winners of the Christmas Door Decorating competition!

The theme of “Departmental Christmas” worked to the library’s advantage. Book pages were used to create the wreaths, and lettering pages at our entrance (left). Bound journals were used to create “trees” inside of the library (right).

Nova Southeastern University Health Professions Division Library

The Health Professions Division Library at Nova Southeastern University hosted two Pet Therapy events during this fall's final exam period. The library partnered with the Broward County Humane Society to bring in several varieties of loveable service dogs as well as Wilbur the pot-bellied pig, as a stress-buster for the medical students during crunch time. The events were very well attended and well received, with many smiles on the faces of the students who are not often smiling that time of year. During the first events, six dogs were spread out though the library's lobby and entranceway, for the students to pet and play with on their way to the study areas. During the second event, two dogs and the pig shared the space, and did their best to help reduce everyone's stress levels. Wilbur the pig took two short naps during his visit and let whoever wanted to rub his belly for good luck. HPD Library will offer this service again during spring exams. See our Facebook page for more pictures.

Director Nadine Dexter Launches New Series for MLA News

Beginning January 2016 keep an eye on the latest MLA News for a brand new series conceptualized and edited by library Director, Nadine Dexter, about “born digital” health sciences libraries. The year-long series will be written by library directors from “born digital” libraries – those without legacy collections or buildings, and those with primarily all-electronic collections. Ms. Dexter’s co-authors include Liz Lorbeer from Western Michigan University; Debra Rand from Hofstra North Shore-LIJ School of Medicine; Bradley Long from Central Michigan University; and Joanne Muellenbach from California Health Sciences University. Topics included in the series are introduction to the “born digital” concept, space planning, staffing, budget, LCME requirements, and more.

Librarians at SC/MLA in Puerto Rico

Michael Garner, Shalu Gillum, Nadine Dexter, and Deedra Walton at the SC/MLA annual meeting in San Juan, Puerto Rico

Several library faculty attended the SC/MLA annual meeting in San Juan, Puerto Rico in October 2015. The library team reconnected with former colleague Michael Garner (now at Ross Medical School in Dominica) to present a poster titled, “Librarians Join Forces! Collaborating with Faculty and Instructional Designers to Create a Rubric for Students on How to Use Evidence-Based Medicine Resources.” The poster described how the library team worked with Practice of Medicine module faculty to create a rubric by which librarians could provide feedback on first year medical students’ use of resources to answer clinical questions generated during patient encounters.

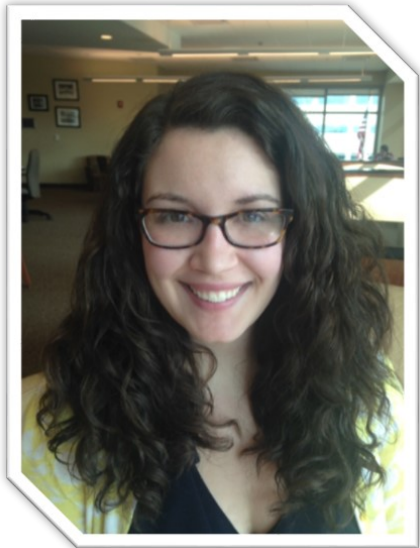

Information Anywhere

This winter the library unveiled its new “Information Anywhere” campaign, spearheaded by User Services Librarian Natasha Williams. Following in the footsteps of several other Florida libraries, the library is circulating some “non-traditional” items, including lap desks, rolling whiteboards, and our newest offering—lounge chairs! The goals of the campaign are to allow patrons to: (1) not be confined to the physical library space, and (2) set up their study or work environment wherever they feel most comfortable around campus.

Lounge chairs available for circulation at the Harriet F. Ginsburg Health Sciences Library.

Introducing Our Newest Team Member

We recently hired a new Sr. Library Technical Assistant, Amelia Strickland. Amelia joined the Health Sciences Library in November 2015 as a Senior Library Technical Assistant. As part of the Public Services team, Amelia provides assistance to students, faculty, and staff at the library's circulation desk. She also helps promote the library's services, resources, and events within the College of Medicine. It is her goal to ensure that every library patron has the best possible experience while engaging with the library's many offerings. A Knight at heart, Amelia earned her Bachelor's degree in Advertising and Public Relations from the University of Central Florida, where she is now pursuing her Master's degree.

University of South Florida College of Medicine Shimberg Health Sciences Library

Rose Bland, Krystal Bullers and Allison Howard attended the SC/MLA meeting in Puerto Rico. Krystal and Allison presented a poster from the Shimberg Reference Team entitled: From confusion to community: designing a more creative (and fun!) library orientation. The scavenger hunt map was actually an outline of Puerto Rico! Congratulations to those who guessed it!

The Shimberg Library recently hosted two NN/LM classes: Answering the Right Questions: Data Collection for Health Information Outreach, and Finding Information in Numbers and Words: Data Analysis for Health Information Outreach taught by Cindy Olney and Karen Vargas. The library also hosted an MLA webinar on Instructional Design.

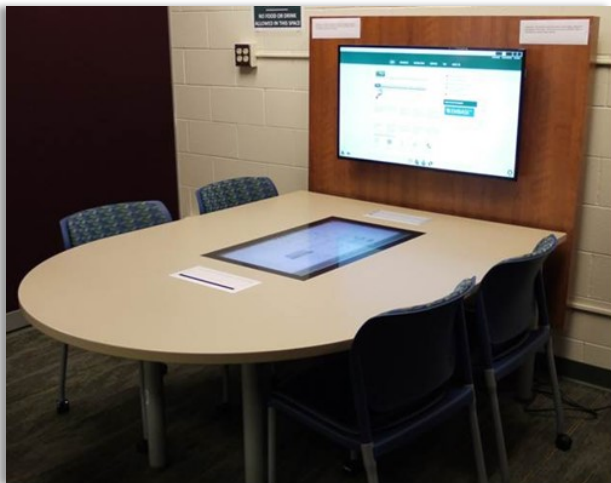

Allison attended the FACRL meeting in Gainesville on Tackling the Textbook Problem: Leveraging Library Resources and OERs to Reduce Costs.

Congratulations to Kristen Sakmar on her acceptance to the 2015-2016 Sunshine State Library Leadership Institute (SSLLI). Kristen is very excited to work with other librarians from around the State of Florida and develop her leadership skills!

The downtown site for the USF Morsani College of Medicine and its Heart Institute was dedicated on December 8, 2015 (pictured right). The new site is close to Tampa General Hospital, USF's primary teaching and clinical site, and USF's Center for Advanced Medical Learning and Simulation. The new site will have a total gross square footage of 319,176 including library space, classrooms, offices, labs, and dining areas.

We have a new collaboration table (pictured left)! It can be used to search Shimberg Library resources or create group presentations.

This past November the Shimberg library hosted Fall Fest, a three-week long training event for students, staff, and faculty. The library hosted training sessions with vendor trainers from Ovid, Elsevier, and Thomson Reuters, as well as training sessions from Shimberg Librarians. Attendees enjoyed it and learned a lot!

Although the weather outside refused to cooperate with us in heralding the festive holiday season, our reliable Florida air conditioning set the mood. Add a virtual crackling TV fireplace, a 10 foot tree, festive decorations, and voila! A comfier study environment.

To get into the holiday season and give our students a study break, we invited them to help decorate our Shimberg tree. A cart decked out with ornaments was set out along with a table of goodies.

An added bonus was being joined by a lovely group of pet therapy canines from Pet Partners. Treats and tricks for all.

During exam week, we had our last pet therapy event of the year with Pet Partners. With our study rooms booked up and stress levels at high, our furry guests were in demand during study breaks. No one does cuddles and one-on-one time like Eli, Abby, and Charlie. The best stress relief on campus.

Favorite Website or Blog:

Gosh that's tough, I follow quite a few. My most recent blog/newsfeed obsession is the new Boston Globe Media product STAT, which, like the name implies, stays on top of the most recent medical news without some of the more bombastic headlines that traditional pop-science journalism tends to create, although I do take many of their stories with a grain of salt. My personal and professional lives tend to blend, though, because for fun I read the personal blogs of NIH Librarian Lisa Federer and hockey statistics guru Jen Lute Costella, better known as @RegressedPDO.

What made you decide to become a medical/health sciences librarian?

Librarianship was always on the radar for me – my mother is a children's services librarian and taught me well, although I never developed the appreciation for the Dewey Decimal system that I should've. I wasn't quite sure about the type of librarian I wanted to be, though, until I got a part-time job during library school at Seattle Children's Hospital's switchboard (yes, those still exist). There I witnessed firsthand just how much information a hospital needs to function, how quickly that information changes, and how important it is to keeping patients safe and healthy. I was hooked.

Why did you join FHSLA and is it the same reason you are a member today?

I joined FHSLA because I started working at the University of Florida. As part of a land-grant university with affiliates like IFAS that are located throughout Florida, the Health Science Center Libraries understands its role serving the entire state, and what better way to serve than to get to know my medical librarian colleagues and the challenges they face? Collaboration requires communication, if you want to get alliterative about it, and FHSLA is as much of a communication hub as any hospital switchboard.

What has been your biggest professional challenge?

One challenge that I first experienced at Seattle Children's and continue to experience here at UF is being able to balance urgent, short-term needs and tasks with the less-urgent but more-important long term goals of my position. It's hard to eat the proverbial elephant when putting out metaphorical fires.

Whom do you admire?

It is terribly cliché, but no less true for it, but I admire my mother most. She was the principal for a small school that served a diverse array of families in the South Florida community for nearly a decade before returning to librarianship, and the impact that she has on families, especially those most in need of the safe learning space that a children's library provides, is immeasurable. She can't go out to eat without hearing cries of "Miss Cindy!" and getting hugs from the kids in her reading programs.

Is there anything about you that others might be surprised to know?

Despite being a 3rd-generation Floridian raised in Lake Worth, and having vacationed just about everywhere in the state, I've never been to the Keys. I know, tragic.

Library Spotlight: Virtual Tour of the Harriet F. Ginsburg Health Sciences Library

The Harriet F. Ginsburg Health Sciences Library opened its doors in 2009 as a 98% digital library. We had only 41 medical students in our Charter Class, and not many more faculty. Even in those early days the library was heavily used by our students, despite being in a tiny space.

In 2010, we moved into our beautiful new 10,000 sq. ft. space on the second floor of the medical education building of the University of Central Florida College of Medicine (UCF COM) at the Lake Nona Campus in Orlando. Our library now serves 460 medical students, 157 residents, 30 full-time faculty, 1,300 affiliated faculty, and 802 volunteer faculty. The library is also open to the general public Monday through Friday, 8am to 5pm. While our motto is "Information Anywhere, Anytime, on Any Device," we encourage our users to come to our library to meet their information, technology, and studying needs.

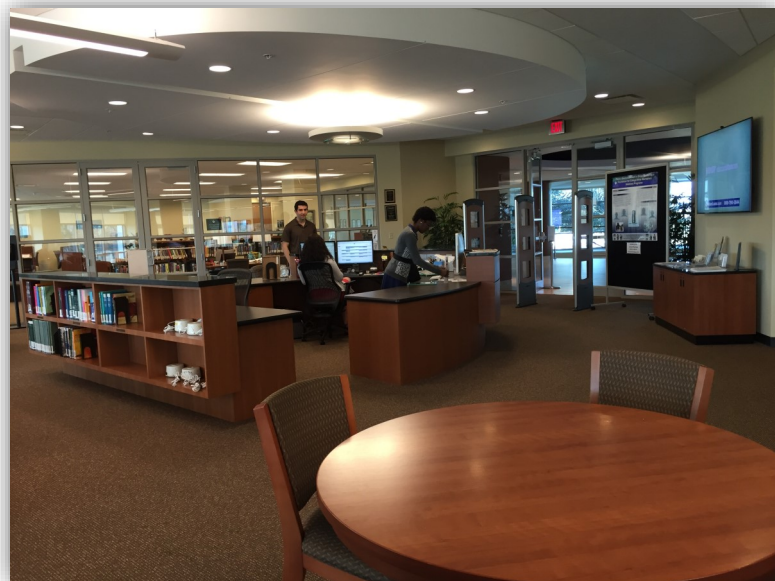

We've come a long way from our early days in a room at UCF's main campus. Today users are greeted outside our doors by our dazzling 80" touch screen display. Here we feature information about library resources, services, and events, along with fun library and medicine information. The library is open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, to UCF COM students and faculty, who all have card-swipe access.

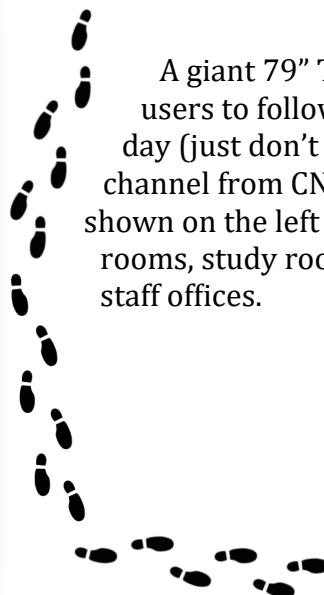

Inside the library has a single-point service desk where all circulation and basic reference occurs. Four front desk staff members rotate through the day (shifts are preset for the month) and all library staff are trained to provide basic technology and reference assistance. The desk is staffed Monday through Friday, 8am to 5pm. Fun fact: the most circulated items in our library are not books, but laptops and mobile device chargers!

Behind the circulation desk, you can see our small Reference collection.

A giant 79" TV allows library users to follow the news of the day (just don't try to change the channel from CNN!). The hallway shown on the left leads to conference rooms, study rooms, and library staff offices.

Our library commons area is a popular area for students to study. There is a flood of natural light, and lots of windows overlooking a nature preserve. Because of its proximity to the library front desk, we tell our students to be aware that this is not the place for quiet study. We do have white noise machines available for use if the volume level gets to be too much. Typically the commons area is busy mid-morning and mid-afternoon, and is still relatively quiet even when full.

The commons area features six iMac stations around the two columns pictured left, available for anyone, including our public patrons.

We have two unique features in the commons area. One is our beautiful orchids (pictured below), which have been present in our library since we opened. The orchids are in honor of Harriet F. Ginsburg, for whom our library is named. Fun fact: Library Director Nadine Dexter, and Melodie Gardner, our Library Technical Assistant Specialist, do a fantastic job maintaining them.

The second unique feature of our commons area is the first of two charging stations (pictured below, left) available to library users. The stations allow both iOS and Android users to charge their devices, especially when the front desk is not staffed.

In the fall of 2014 we realized that our quiet study room was becoming as popular as the commons area. With another 120 students in the incoming class, we were quickly running out of study space. Throughout the 2015 school year, we worked with Library Interiors of Florida, Inc. to plan a renovation of the quiet room, which would consolidate shelving housing our circulating book collection, add more study carrels, and increase our Reserve collection space.

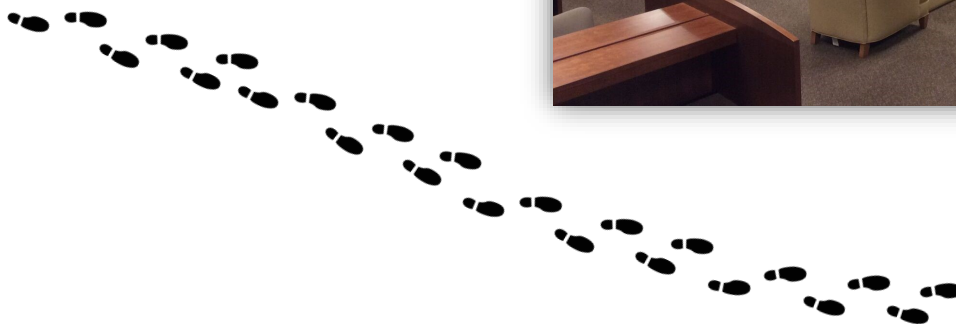

In November of 2015 we opened our newly renovated quiet space, formally known as the Julia J. Pet-Armacost, Ph.D. and Robert L. Armacost, D.Sc. Reading Room. The entire library space now seats approximately 101 people.

Left is a BEFORE picture of our quiet room. We previously had four short stacks of circulating books, and one small stack for our Reserve collection. Fun fact: while the glass wall between the quiet room and the commons area is not technically sound-proof, it is difficult to hear any noises in the common area while in the quiet room. This truly is our quiet space –you can hear a pin drop in there!

After the renovation, we added 14 additional study seats and changed the configuration of the existing furniture. The circulating collection was shifted and consolidated onto three stacks instead of four, while the History of Medicine collection was moved to its own small stack. We also doubled our Reserve collection space.

We have two unique features in the quiet room. The first is an Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) compliant study table that can be raised and lowered to accommodate patrons in a wheelchair (pictured on the right). Many of our students enjoy raising the table all the way up and studying while standing up. A second charging station is available in the quiet room, next to the “ADA table.”

Another unique feature of the quiet room is the artwork on display throughout the space. Fun fact: All of the artwork in the library was created by UCF COM students, staff, faculty, and volunteer faculty.

The most popular feature of the newly renovated quiet space is the frosted glass along the entire length of the library space. The frosting gives users privacy while studying or having meetings in our conference rooms.

We hope you’ve enjoyed this virtual tour of the Harriet F. Ginsburg Health Sciences Library. Although our users can access our library resources “Anywhere, Anytime, on Any Device,” we still have a space that is inviting, comfortable, and beautiful, and that is very popular with our users. We hope you come visit us in the future!
